What are the Program Learning Outcomes?

A learning outcome is a description of the knowledge, skills and abilities you will gain as you complete your coursework.

1. Develop and maintain a strong academic knowledge of the content they want to teach and an understanding of the pedagogy that best meets graduate interns' needs.

2. Understand the culture and structure of schools and how schools shape the values and work of teachers and graduate interns.

3. Understand the research in human development and learning, working with exceptionalities in the classroom, learning theory and cognitive development, adolescent psychology and the impact of reflective action research on classroom practice.

4. Understand the importance of learning about the community in which they teach and encourage people to think of themselves as teachers in a community, as well as in a school.
