

Course 6 students will learn to identify and describe the political and social relations...

with other countries.

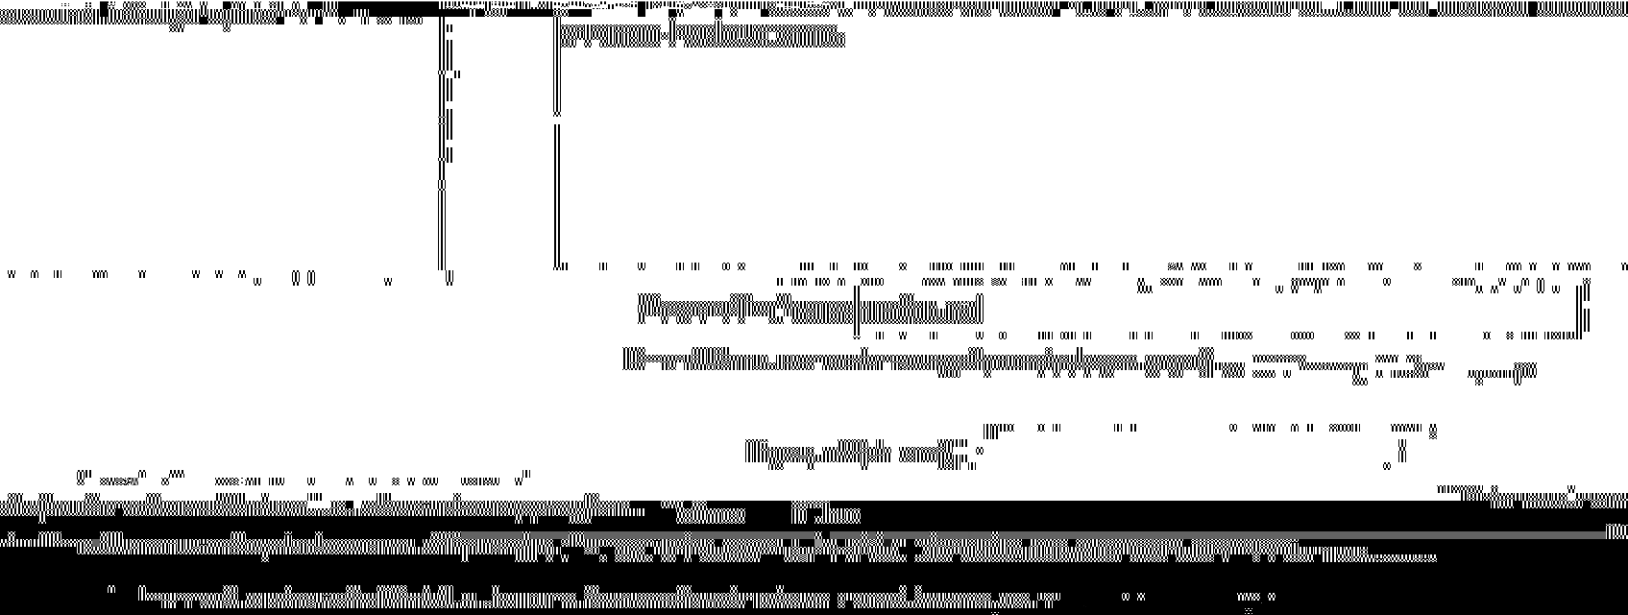

interact with neighboring political parties,

6. Students will describe and explain how political organized interest groups and the media

• other, describe places

is needed. For example, it is important to understand the political and social relations...

Explain why the new course Does it reflect disc

Are any special course fees associated with this course? Yes No

If yes, explain the need for fees: n/a

Note: All fees in rubric are subject to approval by the instructor and/or BOA prior to implementation.

POLS 3103: Politics of the Presidency, Semester YYYY

CRN xxxxx: days/time/location

Dr. Christopher N. Lawrence <christopher.lawrence@mga.edu>

Associate Professor of Political Science, Middle Georgia State University

Website: <http://www.cnlawrence.com/teaching> Twitter: @DrLawrenceMGA Phone: (478) 471-5749.

Office Hours: Days/time/location

Also available by appointment.

This course examines the historical and contemporary presidency and the role of the president and executive branch within the broader political system. Rather than focusing on the current president, this course examines the institution of the presidency to advance a broader understanding of how different officeholders have approached exercised the powers of the office.

Catalog Description: A historical and comparative analysis of the presidency and other chief executive offices. Includes the study of the presidency's functions, powers, and relations with other political institutions.

Student Learning Objectives: At the conclusion of this course, students will meet the following objectives:

Course Outline: Any changes to this schedule will be announced in class and will be posted to the course calendar and in Brightspace. We will not necessarily read books in the order they appear the syllabus; please be prepared to read the concept chapters in advance of the designated class dates