

Current Course Title: ECR 3301 Advanced Electronic Health Records Systems

This course will prepare students to work in an electronic health record environment. Topics include: data in depth study of the electronic health record environment; data security; data privacy; data interoperability; data exchange; data integration; information organizations; security; contingency planning; advisability; functionality; interoperability; supporting technology; and data management.

