

Jenia Bacote delivered a brief presentation on the humanity of diversity, inclusion and equality (DEI). After a brief delay, Jenia spoke about what it takes for DEI initiatives to work. She began by stating that as humans we are all different, and are coexisting on one planet. She stated that DEI initiatives are important so that our coexistence may be harmonious. She stated that she read somewhere that our perspectives are our highest forms of diversity. We all see the world differently from one another. Jenia Bacote stated that DEI training is good, as long as it broadens your perspective of yourself, others, and life and general, and if the training challenges your conclusions. She has discovered that some argue that DEI training does not work because we all

Hamilton is the organizer for the Macon drive. She asked that staff council members participate as they can in getting the word out and encouraging participation on the respective campuses.

Samantha Boswell delivered the report for the communications committee. Samantha stated that the staff spotlights were still doing really well. She stated that the next focus would be for the Eastman and Cochran campuses. She encouraged continued suggestions from council members. She stated that they would be promoting the blood drives on the Facebook page. She stated the they were beginning to work on the committee guidelines document.
